

Short Bio (30 words / 140 characters)

Storm Grant pens long and short tales. Her work spans genders and genres, offering good guys and bad puns. Her alter ego, Gina X. Grant, writes funny urban fantasy.

Medium Bio (57 words)

Storm Grant writes and publishes engaging male/male fiction, more light than dark. Since 2007, Storm has published with MLR, Riptide, Amber Quill, Phaze, Torquere, and more.

Her alter ego, Gina X. Grant, is represented by Rosemary Stimola, the agent who also represents the Hunger Games series. Check out Gina's RELUCTANT REAPER trilogy, published by Simon and Schuster.

Longer Bio (320 words)

Storm Grant writes engaging male/male fiction, more light than dark. Since 2007, Storm has published with MLR, Riptide, Amber Quill, Phaze, Torquere, and more.

Her alter ego, Gina X. Grant, is represented by Rosemary Stimola, the agent who also represents the Hunger Games series. Check out Gina's RELUCTANT REAPER trilogy, published by Simon and Schuster.

"I'm a joiner," says Storm. "Find me wherever fun people hang out." That includes membership in the RWA, Sisters in Crime, SFWA, and Novelists Inc. She attends as many conferences as she can, including RainbowCon, GayRomLit, and NinC, plus many local sci-fi cons and writerly meet-ups. She's a big fan of Kobo Writing Life's gatherings and has shared designer pizza with the likes of Kevin J. Anderson, Joanna Penn, and Hugh Howey.

Storm lives in Toronto, Canada, just blocks from the house she grew up in. She's married to a friendly curmudgeon from a mining town in Northern Ontario, where he played hockey against Shania Twain's brother. Storm and Mr. Grumpy have rescued many dogs and cats over the years, but are busy spoiling just one now.

Storm loves to travel, spending time each winter in San Miguel de Allende, an artists community in the mountains of Mexico. This past fall, she and a buddy toured China where, yes, she did climb the Great Wall.

Storm and Gina's books are available at your favorite online booksellers. She can be found on all the cool social media sites, such as Facebook and Twitter.

These days Gina has joined the ranks of the authorpreneurs. "I'm a tri-brid author," she says. "I'm traditionally published with a Big Five, e-published with several successful digital-first publishers, and now I'm indie-publishing my own books through my own company, Wit & Grit Co."

The company name is derived from the signature line Storm and Gina have shared for many years, because she really does write: "Quirky fiction that's pretty, witty and gritty."

EMAIL: storm.grant@gmail.com / ginaXgrant@gmail.com

WEBSITE: <http://stormgrant.com> / <http://ginaxgrant.com>